

Good Morning

For your information:

Lives Worth Living on PBS

On Thursday, October 27, 2011 a documentary titled Lives Worth Living is a window into the rich history of the disability rights movement that led to the successful passage in 1990 of the Americans with Disabilities Act, one of the most transformative pieces of civil rights legislation in American History.

Lives Worth Living premieres on the Emmy Award- winning PBS series Independent Lens.

Funding provided by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) with support from the Spaulding Rehabilitation Network.

Thanks for taking the time to tune in.
