WHAT IS THE MPO, AND WHAT DOES IT DO?

The Boston Region MPO is a government agency that works to improve the transportation system for the 97 cities and towns in the Boston region through technical analysis, collaborative planning, and community engagement.

The MPO allocates federal and state funding to transportation projects that improve roadway, transit, bicycle, and pedestrian infrastructure. Programs and projects are prioritized based on the MPO's long-term goals, developed every four years, to address existing and anticipated mobility needs.
